The Department for International Development commissions research to assist the development process, and therefore encourages the widest possible distribution of publications arising out of this research. Copying and local distribution of reports is permitted. Note, however, that the intellectual property rights associated with the results of research (i.e., the information contained in the reports) remain with DFID and its research contractors. DFID would appreciate being notified when material from this CD-ROM is reproduced in bulk for onward distribution, or used in a form other than that presented in this CD-ROM. (This is for the purpose of tracking the dissemination of DFID-supported research).

The contents of this CD-ROM may be printed, and printouts may be copied. The CD itself may be copied onto another CD or other electronic medium. Material produced from the CD-ROM may be passed on but not sold for profit.

Extracts from the reports contained herein may be reproduced in a publication, provided the source is acknowledged.

Copyright conditions stated within the individual documents contained on this CD-ROM apply to that document, and overrule this general copyright statement where they are not compatible with this statement.